Salt Lake

The periphery of this set of tableware is dark blue glaze with scattered light-colored crystal patterns, and the inside is dark blue with fine dots spreading from the edge, gradually fading towards the center, like a salt lake where salt grains can naturally crystallize. Scattered salt particles precipitated on the shore of the lake, and salt layers accumulated in the clear lake. The whole set will leave diners with a calm, refreshing vibe.

This series has a turquoise gloss glazed exterior with vertical stripes around the base, and a white or black matte textured glazed interior. The whole tableware is reminiscent of the bamboo forest with straight branches, and the bamboo leaves sway with the wind, giving people a sassy and clear feeling.

Infinity

This series of tableware is inspired by Yayoi Kusama's polka-dot art. It integrates the concept that everything in the world is a dot into the tableware design. Green-brown, tan, and black-blue lights painted on the white frosted glaze present the natural world, while the dots of different sizes seem to be extending infinitely. The series will create an artistic space for diners.

Flower In Amber

This series of tableware is made of black glaze on the outside and amber glaze on the inside. The crystal glaze reveals the texture of the petals on the utensil, like the amber fossils in which the petals are solidified, recording life and the fleeting time. The whole tableware is low-key, exquisite and elegant, suitable for all kinds of high-end dining places.

Melting Snow

The inside of this set of tableware is cyan as the base color, the edges are orange-red, and the outside is brown-black with a sponge-like texture, and a layer of blue and white is rendered on the tableware. The whole tableware is like the snow melting when the weather gets warmer, revealing the original appearance of the mountains and rivers, announcing the arrival of spring, giving people a fresh and positive feeling.
